

Find out more about the legal ways to access music online both for free and using subscription services.

Subscriptions

There are 2 main music subscription services in the UK: Amazon Music and Spotify.

Both can be accessed on a website or via an app on your device. Both have free (but more limited) versions with adverts, of their services and have extensive music libraries to suit every taste.

YouTube

A lot of music is uploaded to YouTube, especially when there is a music video accompanying it. It can be a great place to find long playlists of background music, independent artists, as well as mainstream music. However, like subscription services, the free accounts contain adverts.

Find out more

You can use a search engine like Google to do your own research for which choice will suit you best. You may find this guide from Money Savings Expert helpful:

